

The Mabu cloth is made of rayon viscose (wood pulp fibre). It looks and feels like natural silk, but rayon viscose is a 100% natural fiber created from renewable natural resource components. Actually, its basis is a paper-like, vegetable cellulose pulp!. Eventually, this fiber reintegrates itself into the ecosystem through natural decay, thus supplying the soil with natural nutrients.

